The Hunt Is On!

Today the season opens for circulating and filing nomination papers for candidates for election to the city council. It closes on March 11, allowing us only a month in which to scrutinize our neighbors to see if there lurks among them a specimen of the genus homo candidatus who can be flushed out of his habitat and made to run.

There are three seats to be filled on the council. There should be at least six candidates running to make the election worth the $185.15 that elections cost in Carmel. And to get six good men and sane who aren't too busy or too timorous (it takes stout-fellas to stand up to the special sort of heckling that is the lot of Carmel City Councilmen) will require the whole-hearted co-operative effort of all of us working in the day time and thinking at night.

The thinking at night isn't as hard as it sounds. It involves a mental checkup of friends and acquaintances to find one with a sense of responsibility, average brain power and sufficient time. The yard stick by which you measure your prospect is the question you ask yourself: "Can he be relied upon to spend my tax money wisely and not to pass any more ordinances restricting my personal liberty than are absolutely necessary? If you can answer yes to each of these questions then you start working in the day time which involves buttonholing your victim and saying: "Look, George, why don't you run for city council?" He'll say, "You think I'm CRAZY?" Then you say, "Men like you don't grow on trees. How are we going to be governed properly if the good men refuse to serve? This is not only your civic duty but your part of the war effort."

He may laugh off the civic duty, but nobody laughs off his part of the war effort.

Your next step is to call up the Carmel Pine Cone-Cymbal and announce that you have bagged a candidate. Publicity is the life blood of politics and the home town paper is the heart that keeps the blood circulating. We take a bow.

What's Doing in Silvan Circles

Carmelites opening their front doors of mornings have been wondering this week and last about the yellow, powdery stuff they find scattered across the steps. When they drive down town, some of the same powder blows up against their windshields and sticks there. Hay fever victims do not need to be told it is pollen, but even a good many of these unfortunates do not know that this shower of gold is coming from Pinus Radiata of which every well regulated Carmel household has at least one in the front yard, some two or three.

Pinus Radiata began blooming last week. We have it from Prof. Francis E. Lloyd, Carmel's distinguished botanist and keeper of the rain gauge. But do not imagine that Pinus Radiata, which with

Council of Three Gets Brave, Spends $92.51; Says "No" to Everything But Post War Planning Committee

Flying in the face of tradition, braving the flood of protest and abuse that is sure to pour down upon its head from the Let's Keep Carmel As It Is Faction, the city council last night squared its shoulders, stuck out its jaw and mechanized the heating arrangements in city hall.

It bought two gas circulating heaters for $92.51 to replace the little old wood burners that have served the police department, the tax collector and the city clerk since 1923, that have burned out their fire boxes regularly every two years and have warmed the seat of the pants of some of Carmel's finest and greatest citizens.

Preceding this unprecedented act of defiance, the council refused the request of two Carmel citizens that it sell them a city street.

It refused to grant the Wishing Wells' Rental Library permission to hang a sign.

It refused the Monterey Ice Company permission to put an ice vending machine on the post office lot.

It refused to grant the California Van and Storage Company a loading zone in front of its place of business.

It was in a state of mind! And there were only three councilmen present, Mayor P. A. McCreery, with a cold in his head, Bernard Rowntree and Fred Mylar. How far the uprising might have gone had they been re-inforced by their two absent members and the mayor had been in the pink is a matter for uneasy speculation.

As it was, the council eventually got around to an affirmative point of view and approved the mayor's appointment of a Post War Planning Committee made up of the city council, Hugh Comstock, Herbert Heron and Kathleen Prewitt, the latter to serve as chairman.

It established polling places for the coming councillor election, which is to include an election of four airport directors as a side show. Masonic Hall on the west side of Lincoln between Seventh and Eighth is to serve consolidated precinct A (Nos. 1, 2, 3, 7 and 8) and the fire house, B (Nos. 4, 5 and 6). Election officials are to be: Precinct A: Ross E. Bonham, Mary M. Dawson, Amy Mylar and Jeannie C. Klenke; Precinct B: Harry L. Clement, Florinda C. Holm, Alice W. Askew and Viola Kelsey.

It raised the treasurer's salary from $40 to $50 a month to take

Message of the Wayfarer, "Pageant Of the Kingdom" to be Given Sunday By Its Author on Its 25th Anniversary

BY IRENE ALEXANDER

On Sunday, February 13, the morning services at the Church of the Wayfarer on Lincoln street will center about the presentation by its pastor, Rev. J. E. Crowther, of the message contained in The Wayfarer, impressive and epoch-making "Pageant of the Kingdom" which he wrote and first produced just twenty-five years ago.

While the word "author" appears on the first edition of the pageant, published in 1919 and on subsequent abridged versions, as well as in the programs of its many spectacular productions, Dr. Crowther prefers to think of himself as the editor and arranger of all the rich material in the field of scripture and sacred music which he drew upon during the single night, a quarter century ago this month, when he conceived the work in its entirety.

An interesting story lies back of that evening in the Hotel Savoy, in New York. Five years earlier Dr. Crowther had run across in the public library the date, 1819, which marked the founding of the Methodist Episcopal Missionary society, and when, in 1916, he met in convention with other staff members of the Board of Methodist Missions, he called their attention to the approaching centenary, suggesting its celebration. The idea was sanctioned by the Board of Bishops that same year

Board Considers Making Carmel Hi 6 Year School

Considering whether they should plan for enough units to make Carmel high school a six year school, bringing the seventh as well as the eighth grade up the hill, or should enlarge Sunset and leave Carmel high in its present five grade status, the school board at its meeting Tuesday night decided to postpone a decision until they could get a sampling of public opinion on the matter.

Additional building will be necessary to allow for expansion at Sunset. Removing the seventh grade to the high school would allow for more space at Sunset and building could be done at the high school on land already owned by the school district, board members brought out in their round table discussion. Asked if bringing the seventh grade up to the

$209.27 Added to Scholarship Fund Since December

Increased contributions and the decision to buy more War Bonds were the high lights of a meeting of the Trustees of the O. W. Bardarson Scholarship Fund held on Monday evening at Sunset school.

The Treasurer reported receipt of $209.27 since December bringing the total contributions up to $1,493.28, and the Board decided to buy three more Series F Bonds.

Most of the discussion at the meeting of the trustees centered on ways and means of building up the Scholarship Fund and the ladies present were appointed a committee to look into the possibilities of having a Silver Tea, and the men a committee to look into other activities, such as a Lecture entertainment, for the raising of funds. Carmel Leads In Race Toward War Bond Quota

With only a few more days to go members of Carmel's Fourth War Loan committee redoubled their efforts to put Carmel "over the top." At the present time Carmel is leading its neighbors, Monterey and Pacific Grove, by a comfortable margin, but there is still some distance to go to achieve the high goal of $410,000 set for this city.

Harrison Godwin, chairman of the committee, has been working hard not only to reach the goal, but also to see that Carmel's quota of Series "E" bonds is sold.

"I have not the slightest doubt in the world that we will not only reach, but pass by a substantial margin the $410,000," said Mr. Godwin. "The devotion of the committee members to their job, the earnest work of the members of the Carmel Business Association and of the Lion's Club members is assurance of success. Also next Monday is the day set aside by the Carmel Woman's club for their drive. I am looking forward to that day as Mrs. Helen Clark Cranston and her fellow members have assured me they intend to do a real job of bond selling."

Martin Gambee Has Watercolor Show at De Young

Martin Gambee's one-man water color show opened at the De Young Museum in Golden Gate Park last week to remain on exhibit for the rest of the month.

With the exception of a few landscapes done here in Carmel, most of the works on display at the De Young Museum are Indian and desert subjects, the result of the three summers he spent on a Navajo reservation in northern Arizona as a member of a scientific expedition and of other trips throughout the Southwest.

Gambee received his early training in New York and later studied with Andre Llhote in Paris. He is at present taking a flying training course in Arizona, returning frequently for visits with his family here in Carmel.

BETTY STEVENS TO DIRECT NEW DRAMA PROJECT

A community drama project will get under way next week under the sponsorship of the Carmel Adult School, with Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens as director.

Mrs. Stevens is already well-known to Carmel theatre-goers who witnessed her fine performances at the Playhouse in the Edward Kuster productions of The Women, Ah, Wilderness and Dark Tower, where she appeared successively as Mrs. Moorehead, the harrassed mother of dreaming adolescence in Ah, Wilderness, and as Martha.

In addition she brings to her new post an impressive background in the theatre. A graduate of the Leland Powers school of the theatre in Boston, she studied speech production under Margaret Pendergast McLean and Professor Tilly of Columbia University, and in England worked under Forbes-Robertson, Kate Rourke and Dorothy Green of the Frank Benson company. Mrs. Stevens was director of the stock company of the Rice school of the theatre at Martha's Vineyard, head of the dramatics department of Lasell Junior college at Auburnville, Massachusetts and acted with the Players' club of Newton, Mass. and Brookline. She spent a year with the Barnstormers stock company in New Hampshire and from 1931 on played at the Lobero Theatre in Santa Barbara, where for a year she also served as assistant director under Paul Stephenson. From 1932 to 1935 she had her own dramatic school and little

Car Tangles With Chain Across Road

Mrs. L. L. Dewar escaped injury but her car was severely damaged Monday when it struck a heavy chain stretched between a post and an army truck across the highway at Ocean avenue and Carpenter street.

The driver of the truck, Robert Metcalf, civilian employee at Fort Ord, had rigged up the chain in an effort to get the truck out of the mud where it was stuck at the side of the road.

logg and Mesdames Florinda C. Holm, Marian Shand, Margaret T. Strasburger, Charlotte K. Clark and Vera Peck Millis make up the Silver Tea committee, and Michael Balazs, Howard V. Walters and Peter Mawdsley the other entertainment committee.

Other business of the evening included signing a check to cover the 1943 expenses which consisted only of safe deposit box rent, postages and stationery, amounting to $4.54 for the year.

A letter was read from J. W. Getsinger, telling of the very successful Basketball Benefit Game held in December between Carmel and Salinas teams at the high school gymnasium, when all services were donated, everybody paid, and $84.27, representing the proceeds of the benefit, was handed over to the fund. The Board requested the Secretary to convey to the high school students their greatful acknowledgment of the contribution and appreciation of the students' plan to make this benefit an annual event.

The Secretary also reported that Mr. Getsinger had contributed a $15.00 check from the American School Board Journal which he had received in payment for an article dealing with Mr. Bardarson's organization of the Carmel high school.

The Sunset faculty again contributed to the Fund, and the remainder of the $209.00 received this year was made up of separate individual contributions, including one from the late Mrs. Edward Siefert who was formerly actively associated with the P.T.A. and school affairs.

Help in Sight For Income Tax Payers in Carmel

N. Nicholas, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue will be at the Bank of Carmel, February 19, 21, 22, 23; the Monterey County Trust and Saving Bank, February 24, 25, 26, to assist in filling out income tax forms. From February 28 to March 15 he will be in the post office building in Monterey.

In announcing his visit to Carmel, Nichols gave the following instructions:

"Internal Revenue employees will not be able to assist you effectively in the preparation of your 1943 income tax return unless you have certain information at hand. You will need:

"(1.) Form W-2 furnished you by your employer showing wages received and tax withheld. (2.) Form 1125 sent you by the Collector of Internal Revenue with the blank forms for 1943, showing tax reported and amount paid for 1942. (3.) If you filed a Declaration of Estimated Tax during 1943, a copy of such declaration, Form 1040-ES, or the taxpayer's Work Sheet used in preparing it. (4.) All members of the armed forces and any other taxpayers who do not have item 2 above should have with them a copy of the 1942 tax return and a record of the exact amount of tax paid thereon. (5.) An accurate record of all other income besides wages received in 1943.

"Please do not cause loss of time to yourself and the Revenue employees by asking for help unless you have everything ready. If you can fill out the tax blank yourself, by all means do so. If you can partially prepare it, do so and ask only for the help actually needed. It is physically impossible to assist all taxpayers. Please help this office to give assistance to those who need it most."

this patriotic work, the Filipinos of Carmel have set aside Monday evening for their bond rally. They will meet at Mission Ranch Barn and will present a program designed to put every available dollar into bonds. Mayor P. A. McCreery will deliver the principal address. There will be dancing and a floor show.

Giving impetus to the spurt of bond buying this week was the purchase at the Carmel Theatre Rally Friday night of a $100 bond by Mrs. Joseph W. Stilwell to be given to the second Carmel veteran disabled since January 4, 1944. Harrison Godwin, Carmel chairman for the War Bond Drive had already bought a $100 bond to be given to the first disabled veteran and S. F. B. Morse bought one for the third.

Over $10,800 in bonds was sold at the theatre rally at which Mrs. Stilwell, the principal speaker, read parts of Lt. General Stilwell's letters from Burma.

apologies to Prof. Lloyd will be designated simply as Monterey Pine for the rest of this treatise, is blossoming with blooms; on the contrary, it is blossoming with pine cones, two kinds, the female which is rosy in color and lives up toward the top of the tree and the male which is yellow and is found in clusters out on the end of the branches and is now busily engaged in shedding all this pollen which we have been talking about, and will continue to be so engaged for several weeks more.

The wind, whipping the pollen around not only deposits it on Carmel doorsteps and windshields, but also conveys it into the upper reaches of the tree where it is caught by the scales of the seed cones which are provided with drops of nectar to assist in the capturing process. Germination takes place and in two years, if the squirrels haven't appropriated them to their own use, the cones open up and shed seeds provided with a thin brown membrane which serves as a sail when the wind comes along to distribute them. They find their way into the soil and grow into fine, handsome Monterey Pines. All of which is put down here to make Pine Cone readers exclaim, "How marvelous are the processes of nature!" except the hay fever sufferers, and they are excused.

high school would give rise to teaching difficulties, both Sunset Principal Helen Cowan Wood and Superintendant J. W. Getsinger said that they could educate the seventh grade as readily at one school as at the other, pointing out that the real problem would be social, the adjustment of younger children to groups of older high school students.

Adult School Superintendant Frank L. McClain cited his experience teaching at a Junior-Senior high school in which the seventh, eighth and ninth grade made up a separate social unit from the tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade group and he said the system worked out satisfactorily.

Earlier in the meeting Father Michael O'Connell appeared before the board asking that Catholic students be given released time from school hours for religious training. His request was denied as it is the policy of school authorities throughout the state to deal only with interfaith committees rather than with a representative of any one religious group.

Piano Pupils Study Growth of Folk Dances Into Suites

By SUNNY COOK

Saturday afternoon a party of mothers and friends gathered at Mrs. Jesusa Guidi Freemont's piano studio on Ocean and Santa Rita at two o'clock to hear her students play.

Among her pupils Dolora Sharpe, Carol Templeman, Fleana Giglio, Leslie Doolittle, Carolyn Fratessa, Anne Fratessa, Marie Gregory, Sunny Cook, Alice Ferrante, Vera Williamson, Marie Fletcher, Delfo Giglio, Anne Ferrante and Janet Martella were present.

The first part of the program was devoted to the development of folk dances into suites and several of these dances were played such as the Musette, a Courane, a group of Sarabandes, a group of Gavottes and Minuets, two Bourres and a Passepied and Gigue.

For the second half of the program a group of beginers gave a delightful little recital of their own.

To bring the meeting to a close Marie Gregory and Mrs. Freemont played Brazileira from Scaramouche by Milhaud.

My Father's Hobbies

My father is mostly an outdoor man. He likes to go camping, hunting and fishing. On Saturday and Sunday afternoons you will always see him in the yard making something. He is an optometrist and has not missed a day since he began his work unless he was sick. He takes short vacations and likes his work very much.

—Jimmy Hare, grade 6

My Daddy's Hobby

My Daddy's hobby is making bracelets and rings and collecting coins, stones and stamps. He has a press that he uses to print names on stationery.

I have a bracelet that he made for me for my birthday. Some day I am going to ask him if he will print my name on some stationery. He wants to buy a farm.

—Jerry Fay Yoakum, grade 6

Painting

My father paints, and paints and paints some more,
Until I'd think his hands would be sore.

He showed me how
To paint a cow
And pigs
And wigs
And bats
And hats
But always when I try to paint
I feel as if I were going to faint.

(I know you'll think this is very bad.
But, please, don't think that's all the brains I had).

—Antony Daniells, grade 6

Lincoln

When Lincoln was the President
A pleasant man was he.
He didn't want to fight at all
But he wanted liberty
He brought together the North and South
And abolished slavery!

My Father's Music Studio

My father is a composer. He writes all kinds of music. Back in New York he has a big studio where he writes his compositions. The studio is about three hundred yards from the main house. It has a pipe organ, two grand pianos and a host of antiques. It has one big room with about a thirty-foot ceiling. On one side of the big room it has the office, a small kitchen and a bathroom, on the other side are the stairs to the basement. Once in the summer the basement started to flood and my father was terribly worried because the pump for the organ was just within a few inches of being swamped and ruined, but we called in the fire department and they brought a suction pump and pumped the water out.

—John Haussermann, grade 6

Our Dog

My brother brought home a dog. We named him Inky. We put him in the garage while we are at school. When we come home we take him out and play with him. It is fun to play with him.

—Bob Laugenour, grade 3

Lincoln

Today is Lincoln's birthday. Lincoln has always been my hero. In honor of his birthday I have written this poem:
Lincoln was a great man
Able, tall and strong.
He never went to college,
But he seemed to get along
Without the education
We moderns seem to need.
He weeded old America,
And planted the new seed.
Then he was foully shot to death
By wicked John Wilkes Booth.
He had to stop his noble fight
For freedom and for truth.
Lincoln's death we mourn today
And for another Lincoln
We sincerely pray.

—Pat Merivale, grade 5

Student Body Program

Miss Staffelbach's class gave two plays after our last Student Body meeting. One was about Washington crossing the Delaware river and the other was about Betsy Ross making the first American flag. They were very nice and we enjoyed them very much.

—Lynne Eldridge, grade 5

My Cat

I have a little kitten. He plays with me all the time. Sometimes I roll the ball and my kitten runs after it. —Billy Chalkley, grade 3

A Slingshot

I know a boy in Los Angeles who had a slingshot. He was playing in the park when along came a friend of mine. The boy shot the slingshot and hit my friend right in the eye and blinded him in that eye. That is what boys with slingshots can do.

This is a true story.

—John Van Houten, grade 5

City-States of Greece

Greece had many cities in the early days. Each city ruled itself. They were called city-states. The most important was Athens. Sparta, Thebes, Corinth were also famous. The people of one city were like the people of another city in four ways. They spoke the same language. They worshipped the same gods. They held races and athletic contests together. They went to the same prophet. The home of their gods was on top of Mount Olympus.

—Lee Laugenour, grade 6

The Greek House

The Greek house was usually square and had a court in the center. There were no windows facing the street. Most of the light in daytime came from the court. At night oil lamps gave light. The house usually had two or three living rooms and three or four storerooms. There was little furniture and that was very expensive so only rich people could have it.

IT'S IN THE AIR. You can feel it, every time the Axis is struck. This is the climax year, the year of decision.

In history, 1944 will be the big year of the war—every stroke for victory counts more now. That's why it's vitally important for every American to be at his post, doing his part right now.

You, personally, have an important job in winning the war—buying War Bonds. It's not glamorous—no, not even a sacrifice, really, because you are only lending your money, to be returned with interest. But it is essential to complete victory.

Your part in this year of decision is at least one extra $100 Bond, above your regular Bond buying. That is your minimum individual quota. But don't stop there. Remember wars are won only by all-out effort. So buy $200, $300, $500 worth—buy more than you can afford. And buy your Bonds where you work—at the plant or at the office.

Your country is counting on you—let's make the year of decision OUR year!

NO "STUNTS" IN BRITT CONCERT

BY EDWARD KUSTER

Sunday afternoon's concert of the Britt String Trio, the third event of the Carmel Music Society's season, found that organization back in the groove. Or, if that phrase seems to smack of monotony, shall we employ a more modern term and say that the Music Society was again on the beam? For after a brief but violent excursion, without chart or compass, into the rarefied atmosphere of super-vaudeville, taken by the Society in its first concert, in which the world's champion mouth-organ player vied with the world's slickest tap dancer to astonish and entertain us, we were permitted last Sunday to descend once more into the realm of pure music, unembroidered by stunts or "novelties."

The writer's assignment to comment on the concert is an agreeable labor of love. To begin with, for once the usually deplorable acoustics of Sunset Auditorium (expertly and officially pronounced incurable except by rebuilding the entire structure!) were responsive and kind. It is pleasant to record that in the writer's wanderings around the auditorium, even up to the last row of the balcony, he easily heard the slightest whisper of tone, while the heavy passages came in strongly, minus blur or echo. Much, if not most, of this happy state of affairs must be put to the credit of the three artists, who, under gentle prodding, admitted that Sunset had been exceedingly difficult to play in. But thoroughly trained ensemble players, unlike soloists, have achieved a psychology of subordination of the ego and of ready adjustment to circumstance, in this instance transcending bad acoustics.

Secondly, it might be mentioned that Carmel audiences, including last Sunday's, are listening better. This was apparently an audience primarily of music-lovers, though one would be more certain of it if there had been the traditional silence, instead of applause, between the movements of the Beethoven initial trio. At any rate, there was a refreshing absence of gabble and uninformed jabberwocky in the lobby during the intermission, and such musical pundits as were overheard (inadvertently, of course) spoke seriously and well concerning the music and the artists. Gone is the day—or is it?—when the following could happen in Carmel:

> "Mrs. Gush-Gush, Patron Member: 'Really, don't you think they played beautifully in tune—considering that they had no piano accompaniment?'" (From the "Carmelite," Feb. 19, 1929, after a concert by the London String Quartet).

The Britt ensemble presented a well-arranged program. However, the four long movements of the first offering, the Beethoven G Major Trio for violin, viola and cello, though flawlessly executed, seemed somewhat of a strain on the uninitiated. Modern ears, accustomed to the full-bodied harmonies of balanced orchestras, great and small, must be forgiven for finding this string combination, lacking a second violin part, a bit on the thin side when played in a large auditorium. The trained musician, sensitive to delicate nuances and the more attenuated harmonies, undoubtedly takes intense delight in such slender string combinations, but it is suggested that in popular and community concert the dosage be reduced. After all, it was written as "chamber" music.

Horace Britt's two solo numbers for cello, an "Elegie" by Faure and "Vanitas Vanitatum" by Schumann, gave unmixed pleasure, as did his encore, "Granadina," by the contemporary Cuban composer Nin, this being a fascinating piece alternating sombre melancholy with singing romanticism. The tone of this fine artist, while not distinguished by the fiery virility and tempestuous passion of Pablo Casals, is noble and

VALENTINE GIFT TO A COMMANDO—1944

Who goes a journey
Tutsan-staffed, they say,
Meets no hail, nor blind-storm,
No panther in the way.

Old Gaelic medics
Held this to be true;
So I send, Brave Valentine,
This tutsan-staff to you,

Carved of all the mornings
We rode the cypress trail,
Polished with the whirring wings
Of tufted mountain quail.

Beneath your hand, Beloved,
At your hour of need!

MORNING WALK AT THE SURF

Look how sand goes back after water
Where footprints small pools shadow.
Rock and shell that were not before waves
Are sharp to bare feet that bed them.
Little mounds under feet flatten.
Holes cover weeds, or sticks, or feathers.
Look how walls fall, grain by grain,
Yet sand-flea not seen stirs them.
Sun moves water far out to sky.
Where they meet the sky is water.
Stars go away, taking horizons,
But leaving blue without boundaries.
No night is left to visor the day.
No night looks with eyes like morning.

LOVE SONG AT SYCAMORE BEACH

You and I in the great squid gardens of the sea, sucking thin subsistence from the old black rocks,
with blue-grey fins, long curving white-gleaming bellies, water-cooled eyes, leisurely arrows piercing the kelp beds.
Breathing a long smooth flow of jellied crimson, beaded gold, purple, yellow, ebony black,
brushing the dark malleable walls, stroking our own green sky, towing a silver stream of bubbles, carrying our words in bubbles, living in a castle and a long slow welling up of sub-sea sound;
knowing love as the night-long tide-caress
and the surge of surf.

THE WEB OF THE SPIDER

BY PROFESSOR FRANCIS E. LLOYD

King Phillip sat "afar in the Palace of the Escurial, that crowned spider with his long legs, claws open, spinning his web to envelop them" (the people of Flanders) "and suck the purest of their blood." I am quoting a brief passage from Tyl Ulenspiegl* which I here recommend to the reader's thoughtful reading (I say "thoughtful" because it is not otherwise to be read), because there appears, in a Dutch edition of 1928, illustrated with striking cartoons by A. Hahn Jr., an illustration by this great draughtsman: a picture representing Phillip II of Spain as the spider determined on the destruction (or sanctification if you will) of the people of Flanders by the imposition of the Inquisition. Not a small consideration was the "inheritance" of the people's properties on their passage into another world. This rapacity conjured up the simile of the spider, and Hahn Jr. seized on it as the subject of the cartoon. As such it is powerful. Resting on a globe, the face of the spider is seen peering through a portal surmounted by a cross. The head is crowned with a crown with four jewels. These one may believe represent the unblinking and murderous eyes of the spider, but the face has two eyes of its own, not anything less than malevolent; and a widely open mouth with an armature of mean-looking teeth. Since the lower jaw is not seen, the spider's maw appears to be taking a good bite out of the sphere within its grasp—the whole not, probably, a flattering portrait. The exigencies of design do not allow more than two legs, embracing the sphere, to be shown; these are good samples of the rest, and we do not need to see more. They are evidently spider's legs, long, several jointed and hairy, and are represented as having each a huge two-toed foot. The ends of the jointed toes rest on and pierce the surface of the sphere, causing blood to ooze in thick, clogging streams. Stretching over the legs and reaching out over the sphere are many webs, entanging the sphere. The whole is fearsome, and does justice to both the subject and the artist. As I am not an art critic, I shall say no more from this point of view.

The artist is not a biologist, we may suppose; nor had he the purpose of teaching biology. We do not therefore hold him responsible for details of his cartoon. What if a spider does not have a foot such as shown—the real feet are too small to appear in the drawing in any case. By all means let's have a foot that we can see and which means something in the design! Nor would the design mean what was intended if the spider had not a sub-human face. And the web, strung like a cast-net over the legs, as if they were throwing it over the prey, all in a hopelessly un-spider like way; even this need not disturb us, because it looks right in the picture. The spider, Phillip of Spain, did not wait for his victims to come to him, but went after them and cast his net over them. He wanted to "inherit" and was greedy.

All this leads up to my further purpose of pointing out that Hahn Jr. makes the webs double stranded and tied at the intersections to form the net. You can see the ends of the knots hanging down as if a fisherman had made a net with separate pieces of line, tying each intersection separately, loose ends hanging. And I have seen a piece in a paper recently which com-

Devils Invade Angels' Roost at Barn Door Canteen

You don't have to be an angel to sit in the Angels' Roost at the USO's Barn Door Canteen. If you bring two dozen doughnuts you may wear horns if you like. Capt. Al Gridley of the Salinas Air Base, and Mr. George Rapp of Carmel did, last Saturday night. With their angelic companions Mrs. George Rapp, Mrs. Al Gridley, Mr. and Mrs. Laurids Jorgenson, and Mr. A. Baer (the last-named from Bemidji, Minnesota) they witnessed a first-rate floor show.

Back again for background were the side wings and scenery of California farm lands, presented to the Barn Door by the Amphibious Engineers before they left last fall for the Southwest Pacific.

Capt. Gridley left the Roost, but not his horns, to perform at the piano while "Tex" Cooke and Hazel Dale led the group singing. Later the Captain produced some Boogie Woogie of the kind Johnny used to give, then a bit of comedy and some Cole Porter numbers.

Then a surprise: Miss K. Helen McKinstry had discovered that USO Road Show Number Seventy One was nearby and had persuaded them to fit their show to the Barn Door program. The show opened with Jeanie Johnston's dancing, Mr. Arthur Herbert, manager and M. C., accompanying her on his guitar.

Miss Johnston has recently finished a picture in which she played with Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen: "Song of the Open Road." Her expert tap-dancing and charming personality promise much for the movie. Phyllis Clever, following her, and singing "Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey" to a soldier she had picked from the audience, got more than she asked for when he kissed her, and retreated hastily, blushing. Arthur Herbert then sang several songs, ending with two request numbers: "Paper Doll" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Jack Craft and Slim Gaut were next with a comedy dance act with wind instrument and baton, followed by a hilarious rhumba in which Slim, barely twice the height of his partner, took the feminine role.

Everyone enjoyed the show, and the show members enjoyed the Barn Door atmosphere so much that they stayed on long after they were through. Mr. Gaut, who first played in San Francisco in 1906, congratulated the directors on their management of the USO, saying he had never spent a more pleasant evening. —C.B.

pared a spider's web with lacework, as if the strands of the web were interwoven.

No, the spider does not do things in this way. The net is made by the simple means of application of one strand to another fastened at the intersection by a stickum-stuff. If you put a spider in a clear glass jar you may easily spot the point at which it fastens its web, and with a sufficient magnifier ,you can see a small patch of adhesive plaster. Further examination will discover that this patch is made up of minute loops of web, evidently spewed from out the spinnerets while still wet and uncoagulated. Swiftly hardening, it remains attached, and not at all easily removed. At each juncture of a net, the crossing webs are thus attached to each other. The net of a spider is all web and no woof. A child could make a model by making narrow strips of paper crosswise (no interweaving mind you) to form a net. A trellis is made in this way, usually. But a basket would be interwoven—but not one made by a spider!

I do not know whether this is a plug for a book or for the spider. You can take your choice.

Major R. W. Canfield Lost in German Raid

A communication from the War Department brought word this week to Mrs. Robert W. Canfield of Scenic Drive and Ocean avenue that her husband, Major Canfield, U. S. Army Air Corps, reported missing since August 12, when he took part in a raid over Germany, had been killed in action.

Major Canfield, a native of New York and a graduate of Harvard University, left his position as secretary-treasurer of the Differential Wheel corporation, with his headquarters in Washington, D. C. to enter the service in March, 1942. Prior to being sent overseas last August he was stationed at Fort Myers, Florida, as assistant director of flight training.

Mrs. Canfield is the former Camilla Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop Brown of Saddle Rock Ranch, Big Sur, and following the receipt of her earlier communication from the War Department, she came with her two children, George, aged eight, and seven-year-old Camilla, to make her home in Carmel.

32,494 Vehicles Registered in Monterey County

In spite of the gas and tire shortages there are still plenty of motor vehicles driving around in Monterey County according to figures released this week by Gordon H. Garland, Director of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

Registrations for Monterey County for the past year included 25,990 automobiles, 5 solid trucks, 3,559 pneumatic trucks, 159 motorcycles, 23 solid trailers, 2,758 pneumatic trailers, a total of 32,494 vehicles.

Monterey county's share of the registration fees collected on these vehicles is $45,050.08 for the year.

British Adventure Film at Playhouse

Carmel Playhouse has uncovered another film treasure in the British-made "Somewhere in France," which opens tonight to play three days, including a two thirty matinee tomorrow. A romantic adventure picture with its locale in occupied France, the film nevertheless shows no battle scenes or other spine-freezers. An able English cast includes Robert Morley, who will be remembered as the trombone-playing munitions magnate in "Major Barbara" and as Charles Fox in "The Young Mr. Pitt."

Next week's mid-week offering will be "Melody for Three," rated as the best of the "Dr. Christian" films. Besides Jean Hersholt and Fay Wray, top billing is given the sensational 13-year-old violinst, Schuyler Standish. Here is a film for music-lovers.

It will play Tuesday through Thursday, without matinee.

No "Stunts" in Britt Concert

poetic, his intonation pure and his technique of velocity and embellishment beyond criticism.

Viola Wasterlain, violinist, gave a brilliant rendition of the "Havanaise" of Saint Saens, following with a lovely encore piece, new to us locally, "Sea Murmurs," by Tedesco. A tall and attractive concert personality, Miss Wasterlain, gowned in red, seems to have tempted someone backstage to attempt the gilding of the lily by flooding the stage with magenta footlights, creating the general visual effect of the Inferno. Even the commonplace golden-oak chairs—why can't some good sister lend three or four of her fine antiques for chamber music occasions?—took on an eerie, diabolical quality. Something drastic should be done about the lighting at Sunset Auditorium in mercy toward singers and players who for musical reasons are obliged to appear forward of the overhead "first border."

The Brahms Trio in C Minor for piano, violin and cello was accorded a gorgeous performance. Conrad Heid, viola in the string trio and piano accompanist for the soloist, here showed himself a piano virtuoso of the first order. This work of Brahms is of magnificent sweep and provided the program with a telling climax. The first encore, a well known "Polonaise" by Beethoven, again demonstrated the comparative thinness of the string trio form, but the latter redeemed its credit as a musical combination in the exquisite "Romanza" by Donhanyi, in which Mr. Heid's solo viola made a profound impression.

All in all a highly enjoyable concert, planned and executed for lovers of fine music, wholly free from the vulgarities of show numbers and musical sensationalism.

Mrs. Robert Sibley Tells A.A.U.W. of Wellesley Changes

Tremendous increase in jobs for girls with a liberal arts education, as well as for those with special technical training, is one result of the present labor shortage, reported Mrs. Robert Sibley to the members of the American Association of University Women at the February meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Peter Ferrante. Mrs. Silbey, Alumnae Secretary at Wellesley College and member of the Advisory Board of Alumnae Secretaries in this country, is on a visiting tour to the various groups of Wellesley alumnae in order to acquaint them with the work the college is doing to meet war needs in education. She spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. John Gratiot, and was available for the meeting of the local organization.

The larger women's colleges in the East are training the various women's groups—WAVEs, WACs, SPARS, etc.—for their service, and Wellesley has a group of 400 new Navy men living in a dormitory, which was refitted much as Hotel Del Monte was, and attending laboratory and lectures in subjects they need. Despite this upset condition, the enrollment of girls in liberal arts courses in colleges is greater than ever before, said the speaker. She also paid tribute to the colleges that are pioneering away from the traditional university curriculum, as at Antioch, Reed, and the special group taken by President Hutchins at Chicago after finishing only two years of high school. Out of such experimentation may come great improvement and acceleration in American education.

Mrs. Sibley pointed out the importance of university women's studying post war problems as well as immediate needs in the community, and becoming ready for the inevitable readjustments when peace comes. Women must pioneer in human relationships. Women can carry the torch of liberal education with its great importance to civilization, now that the education of men must be directed to war activities. —L. T.

By HELEN A. FIELD

The Surgical Dressings Unit at Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross Headquarters is nearly a year old. Have you done any of the important work that is carried on there, or just looked into the room as you passed along Dolores street? When we consider the great importance to the men in the service of the careful work done in preparing dressings from the gauze provided by the Army for that purpose, the necessity for each of us to spend some time each week in this essential work is evident.

Mrs. Fred Godwin, Chairman of Surgical Dressings Unit for Carmel Chapter, has some interesting information on the work of our newest unit. An average of 165 to 170 different persons work in it each week. Some work all day or even several full days a week. Others work for only two or three hours at a time. No special uniform is required but dresses worn in the work room must be either cotton or silk and the hair must be completely covered according to the Army regulation. Head dresses may be bought for just a few cents. No previous instruction is required and no course need be taken. The hours when work is in progress are from ten to four Monday through Friday.

Tiger Whiskers Fed to Unfaithful In Tropical Isle

Java, where houses are bought by the square yard and druggists mix up prescriptions out of tiger whiskers and ground glass, was the subject of a talk by Mrs. Leona Mourton Nelson before the Carmel Woman's Club Monday at the Girl Scout House.

Mrs. Nelson, who has spent several years in Java, gave a colorful account of the Island and the living conditions of the natives. Their high peaked bamboo houses, bought by the square yard and put together in sections, cost on an average of $23.00 complete. There is generally a courtyard attached, Mrs. Nelson said, which is surrounded by a cactus hedge. Before the house is a tall pole holding a bird cage imprisoning a small wild bird. The houses are furnished with low dining tables which at night are converted into beds. Cooking is done on charcoal burners.

After describing the home life of the natives, who are polygamous, and their method of farming rice on the terraced hillsides, Mrs. Nelson gave a word picture of the typical Javanese market place where native women, sitting by their sewing machines will sell the material and make a dress or suit while the customer waits. The butcher, a woman, sits in front of a carcass with a big knife and hacks off chunks of meat on demand. Druggists preside over their medicines which include a prescription of arsenic, ground glass, pulverized tiger whiskers which is considered an excellent specific in treating unfaithful lovers. Love potions are also sold, by the drop.

Following the talk, tea was served, Mrs. Grace Howden, assisted by Mrs. Richard Williams, Mrs. Walter Pitt and Mrs. Maude Barger, pouring. It was announced that the Monday Bridge Section is planning a meeting for February 14, Bond Day for the Woman's club, when members are urged to buy an extra bond. Those needing assistance in filling tables were requested to call Mrs. Hanon 604.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

We Dood It!

Both the light and heavyweight Carmel basketball teams walked away from the Hollister boys last Friday night at the Carmel Hi gym.

The lightweights led by Capt. Clayton Neil held the lead over the Hollister team until the third quarter when they cooled off and let the Hollister team pull past them.

It was in the fourth quarter that the Carmel Babes had really to work to overcome the lead their opponents had on them and the game ended with a score of 15-19 in Carmel's favor.

As for the heavyweights—Friday night the Padres were really hot!

They held the lead in every quarter and were really on the beam. Capt. Bruce King led his boys on to victory with Russell Bohlke credited for 22 points. Dick Uzzell 20 points, and Milt Thompson 18 points. Credit goes to the rest of the team for the remaining points.

Coach Rudd gave the second string a good workout, and both strings did equally well. The Hollister boys tried hard to overcome the tremendous lead Carmel had, but to no avail. The game ended with Carmel the victors to the score of 19-64.

Senior Program

The Seniors have set the dates for the traditional festivities of the last few weeks of school.

The earliest occasion is the Junior-Senior Prom to be given on Saturday, May 13. Next on the list, May 26, Friday, is Senior Dress-up day and assembly. The whole school usually gets a great deal of fun out of this. The last lap exams begin on May 29, and end on June 1. The 2nd of June is the day looked forward to by all students, from Freshmen to Seniors, Senior Ditch Day. Detention can't be given to the Seniors on this day. Wednesday, June 7, is the Senior Luncheon, their last get together before graduation on Thursday, June 8. —June Quinn

To the Victors

As a result of Carmel High's beating them in the scrap paper drive contest, Monterey High provided a dinner at Casa Munras Wednesday.

Guests at the dinner, Junior Red Cross members who were responsible for the victory, were: Beva Pilling, Ester Van Niel, John Blinks, Russ Bohlke, Bonnie Fish, Everett May, Walter Warren, Molly Osgood, Rosalie Roberts, and Arnold Pilling.

—Ann Pierce.

Come As You Are

Friday night the Juniors gave an after-the-game dance, playing host to the Hollister teams and the few rooters who came along. After the exhausting gyrations of the Conga led by Jo An Thorn, the cokes were appreciated. Mrs. Brey, Mr. Marrs, and Mr. Getsinger, the chaperons, enjoyed the dance as well as can be expected for chaperons, but indicate that next time would prefer comfortable chairs. —Ann Hodgson

Treasury Flag

Saturday word was received from the U. S. Treasury that Carmel high school has been awarded the U. S. Minute Man Flag. This was because of the stamp and bond drive during the month of January. A lot of credit for this success goes to Joan Janda, chairman, and the rest of her committee. Congratulations also go to the 90 per cent of the students who bought at least one ten cent stamp during the month. To keep the flag flying this will have to be kept up. The flag will be presented and displayed within a few days. This is just one way in which the students are helping their country. —Mary Jane Reel

For those who enjoy scenes of battle, Desert Victory was one of the most outstanding pictures of the year. It deals with the pushing of Rommel and his Africa Korps out of Africa.

This picture was shown in the cafeteria during a noon hour last wek and was enjoyed by all who attended. There was no charge. The picture was obtained by E. K. Bramblett, County Coordinator of Secondary Education.

Army-Navy Exams

The third Army-Navy College Qualifying Test for the Army Specialized Training Program and the Navy College Program V-12 which will be given throughout the country on Wednesday, March 15, at 9:00 a.m., will be administered at the Carmel high school, Mr. J. W. Getsinger announced today.

A leaflet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at the registrar's office of the high school. This form properly filled out will admit to the test students between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive, who are high school graduates or who will be graduated by July 1, 1944.

Intent to take the test should be made known immediately to Mr. Getsinger in order that the necessary test supplies may be ordered. The same examination will be taken by both Army and Navy candidates. The examination is designed to test the aptitude and general knowledge for the program of college training and qualified students are urged to take the test. At the time of the test each candidate will be given a choice of service preference, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

The Army Specialized Training Program is aimed to meet the Army's needs for specialists and technicians in certain critical fields of study. Academic work is at the college level at government expense.

The Navy College Program also enables students to continue academic training at government expense. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the Navy.

Seaman Appleton, Berry Depart

Their former schoolmate, Vincent Torras, Jr., now serving in the U. S. Merchant Marine, arrived home on Saturday night, in time to drive them up to San Francisco.

Council of Three Gets Brave, Spends Money

effect with the new term of office. It approved the reappointment of Florence Josselyn and Alfred Matthews to the library board, and it also approved the acceptance of Harold S. Stalter as a permanent employee on the police force at a salary of $160 a month as he has satisfactorily served out his probationary period.

On the suggestion of Building Inspector Floyd Adams it decided that the building code should be revised and brought up to date now so that people could make plans for post war building with some assurance that they would be approved.

It expressed pleasure at being included in the invitation to the police department to attend the F.B.I. Conference in Monterey, Feb. 14. It listened with satisfaction to a letter from the city of Pacific Grove thanking it for sending the ambulance to rescue two Grove citizens who had been pinned under a fallen tree last month. It dircted copies of the letter to be sent to the Red Cross which owns the ambulance and the fire department which mans it. It was also happy that the County Surveyor, without expense to the city, has undertaken to establish the grades on Junipero street, and that the gas tax fund will accumulate to the city's credit at the rate of $5000 a year and after the war maybe there will be enough money on hand to fill up the chuck holes. It granted a transfer of business license from Ken Carleton to Joseph A. and Jane McPherson and wanted to know if Rosie Lee of Los Angeles who had sent a telegram to the police department asking about getting a license for fortune telling was any relation to Gypsy Rose Lee. City Clerk Peter Mawdsley didn't know, but he had informed her by wire and letter of the 11 steps required to get a fortune telling license here, most of them tough.

In fairness to the council, it had reasons for its refusals: The citizens who wanted to buy the street were Mercy S. Nutting and Isabelle W. Gregory, and what they wanted was a portion of land mapped east of Torres street and Tenth avenue to extend their property. They didn't think the land would ever be used for traffic purposes since that would require bridging a canyon. The city council thought, as a matter of policy, it shouldn't start selling streets to individual citizens.

Refusal to grant Wishing Wells' Rental Library permission to hang a sign grew out of annoyance that the application had not been properly filled out. The Monterey Ice Company had already been denied permission to put an ice vending machine on the post office lot at a former meeting since the locality chosen was in a zone which did not make allowances for such business. E. Langen, appearing at Wednesday night's meeting for the Ice Company pointed out that the old machine no longer served satisfactorily, that the vending machines are not very profitable in themselves and are more of a convenience to the town than a source of important income to the Ice Company. The council objected to the choice of location not only on the grounds that an amendment to the zoning ordinance would be necessary before permission could be granted, but it also believed that the post office traffic problem would be aggravated by cars driving up to load ice. It recommended that the Ice Company consider another location for the machine.

Refusal of a loading zone to the California Van and Storage Company was urged by Bernard Rowntree who said that loading zones when granted here had not proved satisfactory since they restricted parking time to twenty minutes and that restriction applied to vehicles of the people who asked for the zone as well as to everyone else.

The Council is to hold a special meeting February 23 at 5:30 o'clock for a second reading of the ordinance granting the raise in pay to the city treasurer. —W.C.

Message of the Wayfarer to be Given Sunday

and a goal of ten million dollars set as the sum to be raised for missionary work during the centennial year. So enthusiastic was the response, however, the amount contribued rose speedily to 120 millions, out of which the board set aside one million for celebration expenditure.

Dr. Crowther had gone, in 1916, to serve as the pastor of the First Methodist Church in Seattle, and in January of the centennial year, 1919, the Board of Missions wired asking his release for six months in order that he might direct the celebration, to be held in Columbus, Ohio. This was granted, and accompanied by Mrs. Crowther, he went back to establish headquarters in New York.

The plan was to hold 250 different programs throughout Columbus, and for this purpose use of the Coliseum and the Fair grounds was secured. The central feature was to be a pageant depicting foreign and home missionary work. In preparation for the main feature, a professional dramatic director was sent around the world to gather material and atmosphere. The deadline for beginning rehearsals approached—and the script came in. It contained 40 scenes, all different in setting and all mediocre. It was promptly rejected. Suddenly, without warning, the focal point of the entire celebration had collapsed.

Dr. Crowther returned to the hotel exhausted, discouraged, defeated. He went to bed "And then," he adds with a chuckle, "the pageant of the Wayfarer promptly climbed into bed with me."

At that moment in Seattle the great Temple Chorus was preparing Handel's Messiah for the Easter program, and as his mind vibrated back and forth between the lost pageant and the Messiah, suddenly the two merged.

"Why not" he thought, "dramatize the great inspiration of all the centuries?"

He arose from bed, seized a sheaf of hotel stationery and began laying out the scenes, calling up words and imagery he knew so well, drawing upon a memory sharpened by childhood days spent amid the din and clatter of a Lancashire factory, when the walls dissolved and the machines were forgotten while he memorized line by line and verse by verse the poems whispered to him by his little sister laboring at the next machine. His knowledge of the world's inspiring music dated from those days, too, for scant as were the material possessions and cramped the space within the four walls of the Crowther home, there was a great wealth of music and spiritual culture, freely and lovingly bestowed.

The five scenes of the pageant, with their Prologue and Epilogue, show the Wayfarer, confused at first amid the chaos of his contemporary world, led back by Understanding through the great epochs in which has triumphed over the material defeats of slavery and death. We meet the Wayfarer first among the ruins of Flanders fields. We have seen the civilians retreating before a last charge of the German soldiers; a battle has taken place before our eyes; we have heard the guns and watched the bursting shells. Then has come the counter-attack, with the enemy repulsed, the sound of warfare gradually fading away into the distance. The Wayfarer, an old friar in patched cassock, voices his doubt of the meaning of victory. "Who," he demands, "shall restore our fallen youth to life . . . and give a peace that's more than barren words?"

"Come, follow me," says Understanding.

. . . "No work which God began Shall ever pause until the vic'try's won."

The succeeding scenes sweep on with mounting drama through the Babylonian captivity, the birth of Christ, His triumphal entry into Jerusalem, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, to the Epilogue in which Understanding calls up each force that crusades today for truth and right and bids the Wayfarer look ahead toward a vision of the Golden Age, pointing out that while ultimate success is certain, there is no way except through suffering and sacrifice.

In its first production in Columbus, where it was presented daily for three weeks, and later, when it broke all records by playing to packed houses for five weeks in Madison Square Garden, New York, nothing was spared to give The Wayfarer the best in setting, music and cast. Over 2500 took part in the powerful, moving scenes, the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra played, noted artists were drawn from the professional theatre to design the backgrounds and costumes and assume the leading roles. It was, to quote the New York Tribune "the biggest and most spectacular religious drama ever produced in the New World," a sentiment echoed by all the enthusiastic press of the time. David Belasco was moved to write in his thanks for "a wonderful evening" and Gov. Cox exclaimed, "I would rather be the author of The Wayfarer than the Governor of Ohio!"

The sets and costumes are now the property of the University of Washington, where for three seasons The Wayfarer played in the great university stadium. Its success inspired Cecil De Mille's spectacular King of Kings and the inauguration of Southern California's Pilgrimage Play.

This seems a particularly fitting moment, amid the chaos of war, with post-war planning ahead, for the modest "editor" of The Wayfarer to reconvey its thrilling message in the church which bears its name.

Here's an all-year-round systematic savings plan that fits your need and fits your budget. You start your account for $1, $5, $10—or for any amount which you can deposit regularly each week, semi-monthly, or monthly.

The important point of the plan is this: You decide at the start on a particular amount to deposit, and you make 50 regular deposits of that amount. In this way your Thriftplan account helps you to develop savings discipline and the habit of making systematic deposits—the real secret of successful saving. If necessary, however, a Thriftplan account can be closed at any time. To make 1944 a prosperous year for you, open your Thriftplan account as soon as possible.
